BRITISH AMBASSADOR TO CHINA

Sir Knatchbull-Hugessen
In Shanghai

VIEWS ON INCOME TAX

Shanghai, Sept. 14.

Sir Hugh Knatchbull-Hugessen, new British Ambassador to China, who arrived here by the P. and O. Chitral yesterday with his wife and two daughters, landed this morning after a reception aboard to meet British officials, representatives of the Chinese Government, members of the Shanghai Municipal Council, and prominent British residents.

Questioned regarding the income tax issue, the Ambassador explained that the attitude of the British Government was that when everybody paid on an equal footing Britishers will be ready to comply. Britishers could not be expected to pay such taxes unless the whole system was thoroughly organised on efficient lines, bringing within its scope the nationals of all countries, Chinese and foreign, and there was no possibility of evasion by any section.

CONSUL- GENERAL HONOURED

Reception By German Community

The entire German community and many foreign friends gathered at the German Club yesterday to celebrate the promotion of their guest of honour, Herr Gipperich, to the rank of Consul-General.

Herr F. Bumann, President of the German Club, expressed the gratitude of the community at the Fuesher's decree. He mentioned that during Herr Gipperich's 20 years of service he had always been able to convey a feeling of trust and security to the community he served. His wife, Frau Gipperich was known as the "mother of the community."

Herr Martin Hess, Leader of the local Nazi Group, asked those present to join him in a "Heil" for Consul-General Gipperich, Adolf Hitler and the Third Reich. The toasts were enthusiastically honoured.

Herr Gipperich thanked the gathering for their kind felicitations, and said that he was happy to be the first Consul-General for Germany in Hong Kong. His promotion was an official recognition that Hong Kong was an important port, not only for the value of its commerce, but also for the true spirit which prevailed among its German community. He thanked Herr Bumann for the kind words he had spoken about Frau Gipperich.

Herr Gipperich concluded by asking those present to join him in a "Heil" for the Fuehrer and the German Fatherland. Many of the Germans remained after the reception for a luncheon party at which the Consul-General and Frau Gipperich were the guests of honour.

Where Travel Publicity Pays

Examples From Australia
and
Cape Town

How travel publicity, properly directed, pays handsomely, is shown by the following extract from the New York "Variety," which a correspondent has sent us:—

"Political unrest in the Continent has most Yank spenders and travellers concentrating on far-flung corners of the world at present."

SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA, AND CAPE TOWN, SOUTH AFRICA, ARE TWO SPOTS THAT ARE WORKING EXTRA HARD ON PROPAGANDA AND TO BUILD UP TOURIST BUSINESS—AND GETTING RESULTS.

Last week alone some 500 Americans landed in Sydney to spend a few weeks of looking around. Quite a few are lingering for a short spell and then journeying on to the more remote island spots."

England- Rand Air Race

£10,000
Prize Money

Johannesburg
Exhibition

Air interest at present centres the race from England to the Rand which is scheduled to start on September 23. The competing planes will land at the Baragwanath aerodrome, Johannesburg, having flown via Belgrade and Cairo, thus covering a distance of 6,500 miles. The time allowed for the completion of the journey is five days.

Prizes aggregating £10,000 are given by the help of Mr. I.W. Schlesinger, a South African industrialist. The biggest prize—£4,000—will go to the competitor who completes the course in the shortest time.

Four prizes will be awarded on a formula handicap which is weighted in favour of machines carrying large useful loads; the first prize will be £3,000, the second £1,500, the third £1,000 and the fourth £500. Only British pilots and British aircraft may compete.

RACING CONDITIONS

The racing conditions prepared by the Royal Aero Club, which is responsible for organization, give every chance for spectacular achievement. No time allowance will be made for refuelling and other ground work; every aerodrome at which competitors alight, therefore, will be the scene of tense activity directed by pilots who grudge every second that does not see

FROM LONDON TO HONG KONG BY RAIL

Prof. Forster's Experience

ATTRACTIVE ADVENTURE

Except for passport difficulties, especially in Manchukuo where he was stopped no less than three times, Professor Forster, Professor of Education at the University of Hong Kong, who returned yesterday from England having travelled the whole way by rail, said that the journey was most pleasant. The cooler temperatures of Russia and Siberia compensated mainly for the pleasure of travelling on the sea.

Professor L. Forster is the first man to travel all the way from England to Hong Kong by rail. He left London on August 24 and travelled to Berlin where he spent a day. Thence to Poland, where he encountered the first of his passport and money difficulties. He was obliged to declare how much he had.

Then from Poland to Russia, Russia took seven days to traverse. Here again he was examined as to the quantity of money in his possession, it being the law that a traveller could not take more money out of Russia than he brought into the country. One unfortunate traveller at the beginning of the journey made the mistake of declaring that he had 100 Yen less than he did have. At the end of the journey he was deprived of 100 Yen.

The most striking feature of Siberia, said Prof. Forster, was the intense activity, both agricultural and industrial. Developmental work appeared to be in progress everywhere. Then came Manchouli where Professor Forster had a "pretty awful time." The Japanese authorities desired to see his passport no less than three times during the journey across the state of Manchukuo.

THREE DAYS' DELAY

Thence from Manchouli to Tientsin and Peking. It was at the latter place that Professor Forster first learned that he was able to travel all the way to Canton by rail.

On to Hankow. Here the engine broke down, and there being no connection, he was held up for three days. The last part of the long journey, from Hankow to Canton, though slow, was most pleasant, declared Professor Forster. He arrived in Canton yesterday at 9.20 a.m.

Were it not for the delays and the inability to procure a train at Hankow, the whole journey would have been completed in seventeen days.

AVIATION

Men Who Have Made Flying History Visit To The Pilots' Room Captains Of The Air

From outside one hears an intermittent drone of engines. Inside, as one sits in the comfortable, dark-pannelled room, one looks up at walls which bear portraits of pilots who have written their names on flying history. This room is the pilots' room at the London air-port, Croydon—a room known and talked about wherever airmen meet throughout the world; a room as famous, from the view-point of a captain of the air, as that captain's room at Lloyd's where men of the sea assemble.

Around you sit airmen who know their skyways just as sea captains know the ocean routes. They stroll in, who have just brought their craft to earth from flights which began only a few hours earlier far across Europe. Others, deeply tanned by tropical suns, are home on leave from one or other of the Empire routes, and are eagerly exchanging views and experiences. Foreign pilots mingle with those of British air-lines. An Aerial League of Nations is this pilots' room. The camaraderie of the air, ignoring frontiers or restrictions, binds in the bonds of friendship—a friendship irrespective of nationality—all those who traverse the highways of the sky.

Great air captains of to-day, sitting in friendly groups, glance up at the pictures of those pioneers who, in the infancy of air transport, were establishing the fine traditions which animate the pilots now operating on the world's flying routes.

UNIQUE GALLERY

Unique is the picture gallery of pioneers which one sees on the walls of the pilots' room. It tells a personal story of air transport from its earliest days. Here, for example, is Capt. Lawford who, seventeen years ago, now, piloted the first British passenger plane on the daily service to Paris. Here, too, is that pioneer in scientific instrumental flying, the late Capt. F.L. Barnard. Here, also, are two aerial adventurers, superb pilots both of them, who vanished while on early Atlantic flights—Col. Minchin and Capt. Hinchcliffe. And here is Lieut. Shaw, who made history with a magnificent bad-weather flight during the first week of London-Paris flying; also that pioneer who blazed long-distance air trails which are being flown commercially to-day, Sir Alan Cobham.

Sitting round you in the pilots' room are airmen who were the trends and colleagues of early pilots who flew in the era before our air-lines were organised scientifically—in those days when every night was apt to be an adventure, and when landing-grounds were hacked out of forest to open up routes which now span the Empire to India, Africa, China, and Australia. Here, for instance, is that well-known veteran of the air, Capt. Dismore. Cheerful and smiling, and always completely unassuming, Capt. Dismore has been flying regularly for 23 years. He was handling tiny low-powered planes away back in pre-war days. He flew throughout the Great War, and has personal recollections of that early phase in hostilities when pilots were fighting up in the air with rifles and revolvers. Capt. Dismore sat at the controls of some of those hastily converted war-planes which—carrying passengers instead of bomb—to-day with all this wonderful experience to draw upon, he flies as Commander of great multi-engined air-liners which dwarf to insignificance the tiny planes with which our commercial air era began.

CONFIDENT FEELING

No wonder that passengers travelling by Imperial Airways—and more especially those who may be flying for the first time—say that the men who sit at the controls of the Company's air-liners inspire them with such a feeling of confidence. Eight of the pioneer Captains of Imperial Airways have, between them, now flown a total distance approaching 10,000,000 miles. These eight veterans are Captains O.P. Jones, F. Dismore, A.B.H. Youell, H.H. Horsey, A.S. Wilcockson, H.H. Petry, L.A. Walters, and W. Rogers. To talk any one of them in the pilots' room is to realise that Britain's mercantile air service is being founded on lines just as admirable, and as enduring, as that of our mercantile sea service. These pilots do not care to talk about themselves. They prefer to talk about civil flying as a whole. They are concerned not with their own personal exploits. They desire to sink their own identity in the general progress of the movement which they have at heart. It is their endeavour to convince the public, by the smooth precision of their flying, that air travel has left the era of experiment far behind, and is now at the world's service, day in and day out, as a swift, dependable, ever-ready method, for expediting the transport of passengers, mail, and freight.

QUIETNESS UP IN THE AIR

Passengers who recall air travel in its early phases, and who make journeys in air-liners to-day, comment on one fact that strikes them particularly. This is the quietness of present-day flying, as compared with that in pioneer times. Early passenger-planes were not only small but noisy. Their engines, attached to the fuselage within a feet of the cabin, caused such a din that ordinary conversation was impossible, and passengers had to adopt the expedient of scribbling notes which they passed from hand to hand.

One of the tasks of Imperial Airways, when the Company came into existence, was to increase the comfort of air passengers. An important step in noise reduction has been to remove engines from any direct attachment to the fuselage, and to place them out on the wings. Careful researches have also been carried out with a view to the employment of sound-deadening materials in saloon construction. The result, to-day, is that even when in high-speed flight passengers hear nothing more than a drone which is soothing rather than irritating. Conversation is easily possible without raising one's voice, while the quietness of modern air travel is illustrated by the number of passengers who, once they are aloft, lean back in their armchairs, close their eyes, and enjoy a refreshing mid-air nap.

SCIENCE IN AIR SALOON

Those who study the furnishing and equipment of air-liner saloons in America have been led to form some interesting conclusions. In the choice of colours in decorations there are, it is found, certain shades of green which are apt to be displeasing to passengers; while the use of too much red has an irritating effect. The aim is to evolve quite a restful scheme of interior decoration for saloons, with colours well-blended and subdued. It is found a good idea to have lower walls and carpets in fairly dark tones. This encourages a feeling of strength and security. Upper walls and ceilings can be

NEW AIRPORT FOR LONDON

TO BE BUILT AT EYNSFORD

A modern airport, which will occupy nearly 1,000 acres, with a new railway station on the Southern Railway besides it, is to be established immediately near Eynsford, Kent.

It is understood that the land has already been acquired after negotiations by the Southern Railway. Already a transformer sub-station has been opened and the line electrified. The new station has been pegged out and plans prepared.

MOTOR NOTES FROM GREAT BRITAIN

Traffic conditions are such in many of London's main streets to-day that vehicles occupied in essential work in these thoroughfares must take up as little room as possible and do their work with the greatest speed. In this connection the new machines recently taken into service by the Gas Light & Coke Co. for special duties in particular interest.

In the first place the normal wheelbase of the Dennis 45-cwt. chassis employed has been reduced to 7ft. 6in., giving a turning circle of 30ft., while the short overall length results in the minimum road area being occupied.

VERY COMPLETE EQUIPMENT
Describing these machines, "The Commercial Motor" points out that the first active stage of repair work consists in opening up the road to disclose the pipe, and this must be carried out quickly. Pneumatic road-breakers are employed, the compressed air plant occupying the superstructure erected on the chassis.

This Armstrong-Whitworth plant consists of three principal units, a petrol engine, a compressor and an air tank. The engine also drives a dynamo which reinforces that included in the normal lighting act of the chassis. This, of course, is necessary in view of the possibility of extensive operations at night; two sockets for lighting plugs are situated at the rear of the chassis for feeding floodlights.

At the rear side of the engine are pressure gauges, while there is extensive lockage for lamps, gas masks etc. At the rear are drums for carrying pneumatic hose.

Accommodation for a crew of three is provided in the cab, and extra men can be carried on steps along each side, a handrail giving security.

Lights in colour, thus obviating any feeling of confinement. Colour is, of course, greatly connected with one's feelings of comfort or discomfort; and the decorator's aim in an air saloon, as in other transport vehicles, is to put the passenger mentally at ease.

"And Sudden Death" Vivid Portrayal Of Accidents In America

Automobile Can Become Deadliest Missile

This vivid portrayal of motor accidents and fatalities in the United States of America was written by J. C. Furnas, an American newspaperman, on an assignment given him by his editor. Convinced that the widespread reading of this article would curb reckless driving, reprints were purchased by business men's organisations, women's clubs, churches, schools, automobile clubs, and other groups interested in public welfare, for distribution to the public.

Like the gruesome spectacle of a bad automobile accident itself, the realistic details of this article will nauseate some readers. Those who find themselves thus affected at the outset are cautioned against reading the article in its entirety, since there is no letdown in the author's outspoken treatment of sickening facts.

Publicising the total of motoring injuries never gets to first base in jarring the motorist into a realization of the appalling risks of motoring. He does not translate dry statistics into a reality of blood and agony.

Figures exclude the pain and horror of savage mutilation—which means they leave out the point. They need to be brought closer home.

A passing look at a bad smash or the news that a fellow you had lunch with last week is in hospital with a broken back will make any driver but a born fool slow down at least temporarily.

But what is needed is a vivid and SUSTAINED realization that every time you step on the throttle, death gets in beside you, hopefully waiting for his chance.

That single horrible accident you may have witnessed is no isolated horror. That sort of thing happens every hour of the day everywhere.

If you really felt THAT, perhaps the stickfull of type in Monday's paper recording that a total of 29 local citizens were killed in week-end crashes would rate something more than a perfunctory, "Tch! Tch!" as you turn back to the sports page.

Even a mangled body on a slab at the morgue, wretchedly portraying the consequences of bad motoring judgment, isn't a patch on the scene of the accident itself. No artist working on a safety poster would dare depict that in full detail.

HUMAN GROANING
The picture would have to include motion-picture and sound effects, too—the flopping, pointless efforts of the injured to stand up; the queer grunting noises; the steady, panting groaning of a human being with pain creeping up on him as the shock wears off.

It should portray the slack expression on the face of a man, drugged with shock, staring at the Z-twist in his broken leg, the in-lane crumpled effect of a child's body after its bones are crushed inward, a realistic portrait of an hysterical woman with her screaming mouth opening a hole in the bloody drip that fills her eyes and runs off her chin. Minor details would include the raw ends of bones protruding through flesh in compound fractures, and the dark, oozing surfaces where clothes and skin were haved off at once. Those are all standard, everyday sequels to the modern passion for going places in a hurry and taking a chance or two by the way. If ghosts could be put to a useful purpose, every bad stretch of road in the United States would greet the oncoming motorist with groans and screams and the educational spectacle of ten or a dozen corpses, all sizes, sexes and ages, lying horribly still on the bloody grass.

"TAKE IT EASIER"

Last year a state trooper of my acquaintance stopped a big red Hispano for speeding. Papa was obviously a responsible person, obviously set for a pleasant weekend with his family—so the officer cut into papa's well-bred expostulations: "Til leave you off this time, but if you keep on this way, you won't last long. Get going—but take it easier."

Later a passing motorist halted the trooper and asked if the red Hispano had got a ticket. "No," said the trooper. "I hated to spoil their party." "Too bad you didn't," said the motorist. "I saw you stop them—and then I passed that car again 50 miles up the line. It still makes me feel sick at my stomach. The car was all folded up like an accordion—the colour was about all there was left. They were all dead but one of the kids—and he wasn't going to live to the hospital."

Maybe it will make you sick at your stomach, too. But unless you're a heavy-footed incurable, a good look at the picture the artist wouldn't dare paint, a first-hand acquaintance with the results of mixing gasoline with speed and bad judgment, ought to be well worth your while. I can't help it if the facts are revolting. If you have the nerve to drive fast and take chances, you ought to have the nerve to take the appropriate cure. You can't ride an ambulance or watch the doctor working on the victim in the hospital, but you can read.

AIR TRAFFIC RESEARCH

News from Germany indicates the intention of the German authorities to establish an "Academy for Air Traffic Research." One of the chief tasks of this body will be to study commercial air progress throughout the world, and it will prepare a comprehensive annual report, to be presented to the Government. Particular attention is to be paid to the economics of world air transport.

ADVENTURES IN BUSINESS AND STOCK EXCHANGE

Why Lottery Tickets Sell

Almost everybody wants money. But not everybody wants to make it. It is surprising how many people are not willing to give value for money. They dream of it, but they won't work for it.

That is why sweepstake and lottery tickets sell like hot cakes. The casinos and the bookies do a roaring trade.

And many a dreamer goes to the Stock Exchange for a contract note and doesn't wake until the bottom has fallen out of the market.

I always wanted to make money, writes Sydney Moseley in the "Sunday Chronicle." But only because the things I wanted more than money are unattainable without it. Yet my tastes are simple—the sunshine and the sea and freedom of body and spirit.

At different times I have made and lost large sums of money—small "fortunes" in the ordinary sense of the word.

I have been a very big operator on the stock markets. I do not bet, and I do not play cards, but if people said of me that I have been a great "gambler" I should not quarrel with their description.

At the foundation of my fortune has been hard work.

I have written more than a score of books and many millions of words for the Press. I earned my living with my pen and something more than I spent. That unspent margin alone enabled me to adventure in business and the Stock Exchange.

NO STRANGER TO POVERTY

There were more and perhaps better reasons for me to want money than for most people. Poverty was no stranger to me in my childhood.

My mother was left a widow in very straitened circumstances when I was a little boy. Even at the age of 12 my heart was filled with the resolve to help her.

But although my devoted mother died long before I had made my fortune at all, that resolve strengthened my purpose all through life.

After I had tasted both success and failure I began to understand that there is adventure and even romance in money-making.

I learned the thrill of a big gamble. I knew the keen zest of backing my own opinion against the world. I loved the battle for its own sake.

The first step is the hardest. Most men, starting from a financial zero, have a tougher struggle to put the first hundred pounds in the bank than afterwards to increase it to a thousand.

This is the story of my own adventures in reaching "The first £100,000." I doubt whether it will have any sequel, for I have no wish to be a millionaire. Perhaps I am one of the few men who know when they have enough.

"SUNK" IN A WELL OF OIL

It was a lucky "tip" that started me on the perilous paths of financial adventure and an unlucky one that tipped me and my small capital into a bottomless well of oil—where the capital is still sunk.

Financial "tips" have this in common with racing ones: they are almost as likely to be wrong as they are to be right and the ones you don't take are usually the ones which come off. If you never take any of them you will probably save money.

But perhaps there is such a thing as beginner's luck—what might be called "the devil's own luck," for he probably uses it to bait the trap.

It was one little stroke of luck which turned me, who had promised never to back a horse or play cards for money, into a bigger gambler than my brothers, who did both with unprofitable persistency.

My three brothers were all keen punters and sometimes lost the rent money on Epsom "certainties." What escaped the Turf was frequently lost at cards.

They knew all about horses and they lost. They knew all about cards—faro, banker, brag, pon-toon, and other strangely-named games—and still they lost. They died poor men.

As a boy I did not consider the ethics of gambling at all. What impressed me was that my brothers did not seem to get anything approaching value for money.

On the contrary, their gambling was a constant course of anxiety to them. There seemed to be a heartache in every thrill. They always looked as though they expected the worst and their expectation was seldom disappointed.

If they had wagered no more than they could afford they might have got more run out of gambling. But then that is not gambling at all, as I discovered later on in a different field of enterprise.

At the time I simply observed and, wondering, I went to my mother and said: "My brothers are foolish to bet like they do. I shall never bet at all."

I never have. But I have won and lost many fortunes on the Stock Exchange. I have gambled to the last limit of my resources in several business ventures. And I have often won or lost, in an hour more than any of my brothers did in a lifetime.

At the time I received the first tip that lured me into these adventures I knew nothing about finance. I had heard of Consols and scarcely realised that there were other stocks and shares to be dealt in.

My savings, such as they were, went into the Post Office Savings Bank. At last, by sheer thrift, I had an imposing credit balance. I had passed the first milestone on the road to wealth. I had secured the first hundred pounds.

FIRST "TIP" A WINNER

When, therefore, I had this £100 in the bank, a small footing in journalism, an inquiring mind, and a natural inclination to try anything once, I got my first tip.

A relative of mine, co-director in a big industrial concern, suggested that I should put a few pounds in a new and small concern in which he was interested.

"The shares are a bit below par, my boy," said he, "but I fancy they'll recover when the figures for this year's earnings come out. In fact, I think there's a small profit to be made."

I knew what "below par" meant. But I didn't know much else about stocks and shares. I had no idea how one bought them. On the other hand, I knew my relative was a sound business man and if he thought there was a profit to be made that was good enough for me.

"Thanks," said I, "I'd like to put a few pounds into this business as you suggest, but how do I go about it?"

"How much do you want to invest?" he said.

That frightened me, but, trying to be casual, I said: "Oh, I don't know; say a hundred!"

"No; we'll say twenty-five," he retorted. "You can leave it to me. I'll buy the shares for you, and if they should go wrong I shall certainly come on you for the difference."

Within the month my relative sent me a cheque for £3 14s. 4d. His letter said that he had taken a small profit, and that that was my share after paying expenses.

No cheque I had ever received gave me such satisfaction.

"Can you beat that?" I asked myself delightedly. "Here are millions of poor, stupid, unimaginative people stewing and sweating to scrape a living when there's money to be picked up like this!"

I wished I had been allowed to invest the full hundred. Then I should have made £14 17s. 4d. Very likely, I thought, my relative had invested a thousand pounds. Or more than that.

Why, if a man had had some capital and a little pluck, there was a fortune to be made. I began to build magnificent dream castles. It was every exciting.

That first "tip"—that first "winner." It may be so termed—exercised a tremendous psychological effect upon me. I had been bent on saving money; now I began to think almost entirely of making it.

I had played my first big hand in the game of high finance before I had ever dealt with a broker. In my own name and long before I knew that "contango" was a feverish dance exclusively performed to the city's orchestra.

THE ART OF SAVING

Not long after, my paper crashed. It ceased publication and ceased too, for the time being, my Stock Exchange ambitions.

I sank my savings in a small agency venture. "Sank" is the right word.

My savings had gone "West," so I went East; and became, in my twenty-second year, a full-blown editor in Cairo.

There, in my trunk, I kept a black bag and, whenever I had a pound to spare, I dropped it into this bag. Never once, until I finally left Egypt, did I ever go to that bag to take anything out.

I don't believe any man ever became very rich simply by saving. On the other hand, I doubt whether any great fortune was ever made by anybody who has never learned to save.

And the whole secret of saving is to put what you can afford away and then—resolutely—forget it.

GERMAN LABOUR FRONT

Leader Outlines Work Done

Nuremberg, Sept. 13.

At the Party Congress on Sunday, Reichs Organisation Leader, Dr. Robert Ley, leader also of the German Labour Front, gave some interesting details of the work done by that organisation, which with its 20 million members can justly call itself the largest organisation in the world.

The section for providing homes for workers, for instance, has more than 15,000 buildings in hand or already finished.

In the past year the Labour Front has paid out about 87 million Marks for pensions and relief, although the contribution to the Labour Front are smaller than those paid in former years to the Trade Unions.

The department for vocational training has established 400 training workshops and a further 150 are under construction. About 24 million people have gone through Labour Front training courses.

Many practical measures have been taken to ensure the safety of the labourer, and to prevent accidents.

The crowning piece of work of the Labour Front was the organisation "Strength through Joy." It had doubled its services in 1935, six million persons having participated in trips and tours, in comparison to three million last year. The section known as "Beauty of Work" disposed of 200 million Reichsmarks in the past and 400 million in the current year in building 8,000 canteens, restaurants, 3,000 lawns, 500 sportsgrounds, 200 swimming baths, 12,000 washing and changing rooms.

In spite of all this, there was a monthly surplus of 7.5 million marks, and this had enabled the Labour Front to embark upon the gigantic scheme costing 173 million Marks, including seaside resorts, sanatoria, seamen's homes and two large steamers, administrative buildings, training colleges for political leaders and many other things.

The Speaker concluded by saying that one ought to compare these achievements with the "slavery and hunger in the Soviet paradise of Russia," which the speaker said was nothing, but a Jewish concern for the ruthless exploitation of the poor downtrodden Russian nation.

USES OF INFRA-RED PHOTOGRAPHY

Medical Possibilities

At the conference at Edinburgh University recently of the Pathological and Bacteriological Laboratory Assistants' Association Mr. Herbert Flower, of Messrs. Ilford, Limited, London, discussed recent progress in infra-red photography.

It was not actually a new thing, he said, and as back as 1880 material sensitive to infra-red radiation was used by Sir William Abney. By means of infra-red lamps installed in a picture theatre it had been found possible to photograph the audience unknown to them.

One of the slides used to illustrate this showed King Edward when Prince of Wales watching the premiere of "The Iron Duke."

and Charles Laughton and five of the "wives" among the audience at the first performance of "The Private Lives of Henry VIII." in which they were featured.

Mr. Flower also spoke of the value of infra-red photography in criminology. The new process had found widespread application in the deciphering of old documents defaced either by overwriting or by the ravages of time, and in the detection of forgeries in modern documents. It had also made easier the photographing of stars. The possibilities, as yet little developed, of the infra-red plate in clinical photography were also indicated. In agriculture it had been of great assistance in the investigation of plant life diseases at an early stage when the virus spots were invisible to the eye.

The lecturer also showed slides illustrating the value of the infra-red plate in aerial and landscape photography, and said it had been possible to photograph the earth

IT HAPPENED IN NEW YORK

The unique experience of a real movie star playing the role of a "real" movie star, fell to Gertrude Michael, brilliant young screen actress, who in the short space of two years, has risen to the heights of screen ranks.

Miss Michael, who will be seen in one of the featured feminine roles in "It Happened In New York" now at the Majestic Theatre, characterizes a glamorous but highly temperamental movie queen, who invades New York with all the fanfare and ballyhoo of a real queen.

In real life Miss Michael is one of the most charming, intelligent and talented young women in Hollywood. She is an accomplished musician and particularly brilliant at the piano. She is also a student of the arts and sciences and has a profound knowledge of religious literature.

"It Happened In New York" is a clever, romantic comedy-drama which features Lyle Talbot, Miss Michael and Heather Angel. The supporting cast includes, among others, Hugh O'Connell, Adrienne D'Ambricourt, Robert Gleckler, Huntley Gordon, Phyllis Ludwig and Rafael Storm.

"IRON DUKE"

For splendid cinema entertainment there is "The Iron Duke," showing at the King's Theatre today. George Arliss as Wellington, ranks very high. The story of Waterloo, with the great battle as a pivot, provided the material out of which a fine screen drama has been raised. "The Iron Duke" enhances the reputation of George Arliss.

from an altitude of five miles, and photographs showing detail nearly 200 miles away were now comparatively common.

Mr. T. C. Dodds, chief technician in the Pathological Department of Edinburgh University, spoke on "The making of colour transparencies by the Finlay process." He contrasted the use of colour plates with the older form of black and white in teaching medical students. The colour plates, he said, were immensely more valuable, and in Edinburgh they could be regarded as pioneers in substituting them for the black and white plates. By means of photomicrography—photography by the microscope—it was possible to enlarge subjects so that the most minute detail was shown in true colour formation.

The process of the manufacture of microscopes was illustrated in a film shown by Mr. A. G. Woodger, of Messrs. W. Watson and Sons, Limited, London.

HARDEST WORKED FILM ACTORS

Three "Faces" Of Man With Three Names

A man who has built up a position almost unique on the screen is now in England.

He makes more pictures a year than any player of equal calibre, and yet by more than half his public is only remembered as the Man with Three Names.

Although technically a feature player and not a star, he is more popular than many stars and more widely known, and is ranked by many as the best light comedian on the screen.

Instead of being attached to a single studio, he prefers the career of freelance. He has more parts offered him than he can possibly play and earns a salary that many stars can envy.

Every film-goer knows that harassed look, that complacent smile ending a suspicious glance over the shoulder of Edward Everett Horton, better known as the Man with Three Names. You saw him in "Top Hat," "The Gay Divorcee," "A Bedtime Story" and scores of other films.

MAN OF MODESTY

It was in his first talking picture, "The Terror," by Edgar Wallace made in 1923, that he invented the characterization that has made him famous. He modestly maintains that his reputations as an actor is over-rated.

"I only have three expressions," he said, "the surprised one, the pleased one, and the suspicious one. You just assume the right one at the right moment, and you can meet any situation."

That there is more in his performances than this is shown, however, by the fact that he did not find success on the screen until the arrival of talking films.

"Many people in California maintain that I was directly responsible for the introduction of 'talkies.' Producers would take me from the stage and put me in a silent film which would prove a terrible failure; then I would do a little more stage work; then another film until the producers lost so much money they had to bring in 'talkies' to recoup," he said with mock-seriousness.

Mr. Horton's major hobby is collecting antiques for his country house, known to his friends as Horton's folly.

"BOULDER DAM"

"Boulder Dam," heralded as a drama of thrilling action, heroic deeds and glamorous romance, is scheduled as the feature attraction at the Oriental Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday.

The picture is based on Don M. Templin's story of the building of this mighty project, and the lives of the daredevil work-men who blasted their way through solid rock and scaled the walls hundreds of feet above the river, is painted in the picture in colourful detail.

Death faced these dynamic workers at every turn, and many of their deeds of heroism, depicted in this film, will go down in the history of this great undertaking.

The picture is enlivened by song numbers sung by Patricia Ellis. There is a strong supporting

"A Spot Of Work To Restore The Old Tissues.."

At the other end of the telephone—in Le Touquet—Mr. E. G. Wodehouse chuckled. It was the sort of chuckle that only Jeeves could put over after he had fixed something really big, writes a special correspondent in the "Daily Mail."

"Yes, isn't it extraordinary—they want me back again."

Then Mr. Wodehouse tittered. The thought that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer had signed him up again to go to Hollywood and write scenarios after his last experience there, was too much for anything but a Bertie Wooster titter.

Five years ago, the creator of Jeeves went to Hollywood and drew £20,000 from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for doing almost nothing.

When he came back he said it made him feel "dizzy" to think of how he had earned all that money when nobody could find him anything to do.

Now they have rushed all the way to France to wave another contract before his eyes for £400 a week. As mesmerised as Bertie himself before a pretty ankle, Mr. Wodehouse has signed.

The titter on the telephone died away. Mr. Wodehouse grew serious.

GOING TO WORK

"Listen," he said, "I'm going to work this time."

It was my turn to titter. A spot of work to restore the old tissues! Mr. Wodehouse dropped his voice to a low beseeching level.

"Honest—I've got to work. In fact, they can't wait until I get to Hollywood. They are going to have a man to meet me in New York on October 5 and I have got to start right away on a play.

Then, I said, Mr. Wodehouse would no doubt come back again and get down to serious business.

"Oh, no," Jeeves's author explained. "Hollywood doesn't work like that.... This is a long contract—no date mentioned. It might go on for ever and ever...."

"Why, they might even let me write a play of my own afterwards."

Mr. Wodehouse has been busy on a new novel, and now this film contract has come along he won't have time to finish it before he leaves for Hollywood.

"Well, there will be plenty of time out there," I suggested.

There was a painful silence on the telephone line. "I wonder," said Mr. Wodehouse.

CENTRAL BRITISH SCHOOL

PROCEEDINGS DESCRIBED

On arrival at the School, His Excellency the Governor, was received by the Headmaster and proceeded to the main door of the school building.

Welcoming His Excellency, the Headmaster said:—

Your Excellency, Lady Caldecott, Ladies and Gentlemen:

A great honour has fallen to me this afternoon to extend to Your Excellency and Lady Caldecott a hearty welcome on behalf of the Staff and children of the Central British School. This occasion is of vital importance to us owing to our rapidly increasing numbers.

We have outgrown our former home which has proved itself totally inadequate for some time, and we breathe a sigh of relief knowing that we are now to occupy premises more suited to our needs, and which, I feel sure, you will see make provision for an all-round education.

The school in the past has produced a succession of men and women of sound intellectual and moral calibre, many of whom are holding responsible positions both here and elsewhere. Of these we are justly proud, and I am quite confident that the present generation of pupils will carry on the high traditions of the school, which have been built up by their predecessors. The number present to-day is depleted due to the fact that many have left owing to the end of the school year, or gone on leave, and the new pupils have not been admitted.

I now beg Your Excellency to do us the honour of declaring the building open for which purpose I ask the Architect to present to you a golden key.

DOOR UNLOCKED

Receiving the gold key from the hands of the Architect, Sir Andrew unlocked the door and formally declared the school open.

His Excellency then entered the Entrance Hall accompanied by the Headmaster, followed by the Director of Education (Mr. G. R. Sayer), the Vice-Chancellor of the Hong Kong University (Sir William Hornell), the Chief Justice (Sir Athol MacGregor) and the Architect.

Following this Mrs. Updell, wife of the Headmaster, collected the wives of the distinguished guests (Lady Caldecott, Lady MacGregor, Mrs. Sayer, Mrs. Bartholomew and wives of the members of the Executive Council and the Board of Education) during which time the school filed into an allotted section of the Assembly Hall.

The ladies then took up their seats at the front of the Hall, followed by the Inspectors of Schools, Heads of Schools, and President of the Kowloon Residents' Association with their ladies.

They were followed by members of the Legislative Council and the Court of the University and their wives; the Board of Education and Executive Council members followed by the Director of Education, the Chief Justice, the Vice-Chancellor, the Architect and His Excellency.

Visitors and friends of the school then entered the Hall.

A PRAYER

When everybody had taken their places, the Headmaster opened the proceedings with the following prayer:—

Almighty God, our heavenly Father, enlighten with wisdom we pray, those who shall teach and those who shall learn in this school which we open this day. Grant to the Scholars of this and future generations, that they may rejoice in the knowledge of Truth, and in the opportunities of strengthening body and character in this place, so that they may grow up to honour all men, love brotherhood, fear God and honour the King.

SPEECH OF THANKS

The Headmaster then called on the Director of Education to give an address of thanks to His Excellency.

The Director of Education said, in part:—

The thoughts of many of us assembled here this afternoon go back to the occasion, sixteen months ago when the first stone of the building was laid by H.E. Sir William Peel. I remember well describing that as a red letter day for the Department of Education and having done so I find myself searching in vain for a superlative for to-day's function. I remember also that on that occasion when no stone stood upon another discounting my liability for what might rise from the promise by explaining that I could be held accountable for an estimate of the number of pupils to be provided for and a general layout of the building and even then I claimed to share that responsibility with my colleagues of the Board of Education and in particular to Captain Cannon, of the Army Education Corps who is no longer with us and to Mr. Benjamin Wylie of Hong Kong and Kowloon whom we are pleased to see back with us to-day.

It is, therefore, I fear, not seriously open to me to claim any very great share of the credit of the triumphant result we see to-day. For that our congratulations go first and foremost to the architect and secondly to a number of eager workers from various Government Departments including my own who shall remain nameless.

I am sure it is high time that I began to discharge the duty which the Headmaster has entrusted to me—the delightful duty of returning thanks and I want to begin by turning the tables on him and thanking him and his staff for the smooth manner in which they have effected the change-over from the old premises to the new. Secondly, I want to thank the Kowloon Motor Bus Company for the effective arrangements they have made in collaboration with the Headmaster, for the daily transfer of members of the school during term time to Kowloon Point. And while on the subject of transport I would like to take the opportunity of thanking the firm of Butterfield and Swire for a small and unostentatious service. Messrs. B and S. have for many years had a launch running between Quarry Bay and Kowloon Point to ensure that all Taiwan children duly attend at school and lately feeling that some such facilities might be useful to the children of the staff of the new school at Stanley, they have, I understand, entirely unofficially, placed that launch up to its capacity and without charge at the disposal of all such as turn up at the right place at the right time.

QUEEN'S COLLEGE

Referring to the requirement of a new Queen's College, Mr. Sayer said:—

Your Excellency has plainly discovered that Hong Kong has its castles in the air built as well as projected and in asking for just one more I can now quote a very close precedent. I am not thinking of those gorgeous palaces where our more well-to-do citizens enjoy the fruits of their labour or enterprise in the circumstances of modern luxury and comfort but of something probably more symmetrical and certainly simpler, a stronghold of young people surrounded by a strip of green and enveloped in quietness and above all in the air essentially a castle in the air just such a place as Your Excellency has to-day thrown open to our British boys and girls. I ask no more and no less for our Premier Chinese School and I am confident that so soon as it is made possible by the recovery of our public finance or by some fine gesture of private beneficence such as we of Hong Kong have known in the past Your Excellency will not be slow in making good the home expressed to the hopes raised by your predecessor from Malaya.

I thank your Excellency for your presence here to-day. (Applause).

GOVERNOR'S REPLY

Replying, His Excellency said:— We have opened these magnificent premises with a golden key. That was an emblematic act; we have put the old School on its mettle in these new surroundings. We have symbolized our recognition that the School has been run on an educational gold standard in the past and our confidence that it is never going to come off that standard in the future. There are many metaphors in the English language that have sprung up around the words 'gold' and 'golden', and nearly all of them derive their significance not only from the extreme difficulty of getting it. Thus we talk of a golden age as an era of the past or of the ultimate future, which is in either case remote from our own immediate present; and we apply the phrase 'golden opportunity' to those rare accommodations of circumstance to enterprise which we occasionally recognise in the path of others but seldom, if ever, detect in our own.

NEW CHAPTER

Now I wish to suggest to the masters, mistresses and girls, and boys of this School, on the threshold of this new chapter in its history, that all opportunity is golden and that, given sound teaching and zealous learning, every man and woman can with the aid of philosophy and religion make a golden age of their own life. It will of course be a hard and unending process, for the gold can only be extracted from our human experience by constant digging, picking, crushing and stamping, by the elimination of much useless overburden and by refining the dross of selfishness out of our personal composition and assay. And now having preached you this little sermon on the 'Message of the Golden Key' (which, in epitome, is that the function of a school is to train up men and women to win the 'gold' out of life) I must touch for a moment on what Mr. Sayer has said about a new home for Queen's College. I said at their Prize-giving that a new building must be relegated to the category of castles in the air. Mr. Sayer was keenly disappointed. So, ladies and gentlemen, was I. But honesty compels me to confess that I still cannot predict the date or even the year in which it will be possible for us, from a budgetary flying-boat, to grapple the vision beautiful, bring it down to earth and materialise it. Mr. Taylor still has to keep the economic typhoon signals hoisted at the Colonial Treasury and until they come down we, alas, cannot go up. (Laughter). And now to revert once more to this beautiful golden key, that the architect has so kindly given me. It has been used for an inspiring opening ceremony and I will now apply it to a comforting act of closure, in the knowledge that of all golden qualities Silence stands nearest to Mercy. (Applause).

HEARTY CHEERING

Hearty cheers were given for His Excellency and for the School after which the School joined together in the singing of the National Anthem.

After this, the Headmaster declared the formal proceedings closed and the School was then thrown open for inspection.

At the conclusion of the inspection, the School Staff were presented to His Excellency immediately prior to his departure.

GOLD KEY

The gold key, with which His Excellency opened the main door, bore following inscriptions:—

On one side: School Crest and Badge.

On the other side: "With this key His Excellency the Governor, Sir Andrew Caldecott, Kt., C.M.G., C.B.E., opened the new Central British School, Kowloon, Sept. 14th, 1936."

DEVELOPMENT OF WHAMPOA

Proposed Scheme Discussed

Whampoa, Sept. 13. Marshal Chiang Kai-shek in his headquarters here had a lengthy discussion with Mr. Chang Chiungau, Minister of Railways, Mr. Li Lu-chau, Managing-Director of the Chinese section of the Canton-Kowloon Railway, Mr. Ling Hsiung-fan, Managing-Director of the Canton-Hankow Railway, Mr. Wang Yin-kang, Assistant Managing-Director of the Canton-Hankow Railway, and Mr. Li Sin-kan, Manager of the southern section of the Canton-Hankow Railway, and Mayor Tsang-pu regarding the proposed scheme of Whampoa development.

Marshal Chiang, it is said, had wired to Mr. T.V. Soong, Chairman of the National Economic Commission, and Dr. H.H. Kung, Minister of Finance, suggesting that a sum of $20,000,000 is to be devoted to the development of Whampoa into a sea-port and a naval base, if possible.

Mayor Tsang has been entrusted with carrying out the scheme but he is of the opinion that it would be much more efficient if the work be looked after by a special committee. (Da-Dao News Service).

FOREIGN FIRMS IN SWATOW

Japanese Influence Predominates

Swatow Sept. 13. According to statistics published by the Treasury of the Swatow Municipality, there are at present 16 British firms, 2 French firms, 10 American firms, 1 Dutch firm, 1 Korean firm, 75 Formosan firms and 8 Japanese firms, involving a total capital of approximately $50,000,000 of which Japanese and Formosan take nearly two-thirds of the whole.

This supremacy of Japanese influence in the commercial and economical life of Swatow is greatly feared, and it is taken to mean that a definite forward move or economic invasion has begun.

Moreover, the Japanese have not lost sight of shipping. In China waters British firms such as Jardine Matheson, Ltd., and Butterfield and Swire, Ltd., together with the China Navigation Steamship Co., Ltd. have done almost all the business and with a view to successfully competing with the British and Chinese concerns, the Osaka Shosen Kaisha has reduced its freight charges and passenger fare by 50 per cent. However, it is understood that the other shipping companies have come together to consider what is to be done. (Da-Dao News Service).

CANTON-HANKOW RAILWAY THROUGH TRAIN

Canton, Sept. 7. Carrying more than 200 passengers and a large consignment of freight, the first south-bound through train on the Canton-Hankow Railway arrived here from Hsuehshapeng, Wuchang, at 10.55 p.m. yesterday. Although the Chuchow-Shuechow section has only been recently completed, travel on the line was entirely comfortable; passengers did not feel any shaking as might have been expected on a new route.

The train started from Wuchang on Friday at 11.30 p.m. and therefore completed the trip in less than 48 hours. The fares fixed are as follows: First Class $38, Second Class $24 and Third Class $12. (Kuo Min).

FAMOUS GERMAN GRAVEYARD

NUMEROUS FOREIGN VISITORS

Numerous foreigners annually visit the fine Rhine and town of Bonn, and many of these find their way to the "Old Cemetery," which is full of historical memories. Here are buried many people whose names are numbered among the great Germans of the past, and their graves are disposed around an ancient chapel. This chapel has a strange story, for once it stood on the other side of the Rhine, amidst the orchards and vineyards, where it was gradually sinking into decay, when, in 1847, the Historical Society of Bonn rescued it, transported it across the river, and set it up in its former late Roman glory in the cemetery.

In this graveyard are buried the remains of Charlotte von Schiller, wife of the poet, who died at Bonn on July the 8th, 1826. She rests here in the same grave with her eldest son, who died of the same disease of the lungs which finally killed his father. Not far from this double-grave is another, where since 1859 Ernst Moritz Arndt has lain at rest, when at the age of ninety he left his extraordinarily happy and extraordinary tragic life. Beside him rests his favourite son, drowned in the waters of that river of which Arndt wrote: "The Rhine is a German river, and not a German boundary." The visitor may read upon the headstone of this grave the words:—"I know in whom I believe."

ROBERT SCHUMANN

Quite near the resting-place of the Arndt father and son is that of the composer Robert Schumann, who died in the Emden lunatic asylum near Bonn on July the 29th, 1856. The memorial above his body was carved by the master hand of Doudorff. Close to the cemetery wall is the grave of the historian Barthold Georg Niebuhr, who with Arndt contested the forcibly imposed rule of the French. The relief set up in his memory was carved at Rauch, at the special request of Frederick William IV of Prussia. August Wilhelm von Schlegel, the philosopher and Germanist, at whose feet thousands of Bonn students have sat, was buried in this cemetery on May the 15th, 1845.

Not far from his grave is that of the famous historian Friedrich Christian Dahlmann, one of the most influential teachers and one of the most striking personalities that ever graced the ancient university of Bonn. Here too lie the remains of the great surgeon, Busch, whose skill preserved the lives and health of many Germans and Frenchmen wounded in the war of 1870. The graves of Colonel Friedrich von Beneckendorff and of his son, Major Hans Friedrich von Beneckendorff call up the memory of the late President von Hindenburg, whose forebears united their arms with those of the Beneckendorffs, when the latter house had no male heirs. It is well that the cool airs of the Rhine blow over the grave of Karl Simrock, nearby, the Germanist who wandered in the footsteps of the Grimm brothers, and who was able to preserve much ancient folklore that might, but for his laborious work, have been lost for ever. It was Simrock who wrote the famous song:—

"To the Rhine, my son, go not to the Rhine, 'This word I would b'd you heed..."

These are only a few of the famous people who are buried in this hallowed graveyard, but the visitor to Bonn's old cemetery will not lightly forget its historical atmosphere. (Transocean).

Controlling Prostitution

Grave concern is being expressed in certain circles at the continued, unprevented practice of soliciting and prostitution in Hong Kong. The Churches, and the religious institutions working amongst sea-going men, have to compete with the seductions of the street girl and her touts. The matter has been brought before the notice of the Police Authorities on several occasions, but nothing more than is at present being done, which is obviously insufficient, can be attempted, since the Police have no authority to invade a house unless they know that more than one prostitute inhabits it.

While we seriously care for the moral and physical welfare of the girls as well as that of their clients, we would not urge a more rigorous application of the laws against the former, but would strongly represent the necessity of a complete reconsideration of the whole situation. The "maison toleree" was infinitely more worthy of British colonial administration than the existing conditions which allow poverty, disease, and vice to grow rampant together. Can nothing be done to cure this evil?

There is a large and intelligent part of the Christian community in the colony who think that the establishment of controlled houses is decidedly preferable to the present shameful state of affairs. Is this a case where legislation is made for a hypothetical minority of celibates? Is the service of the prostitute necessary or is it not?

TELEPHONES IN CHINA

Nine Provinces To Be Linked

Nanking, Sept. 14.
It is reported that the Central Government will soon be in a position to announce successful telephone communication between nine provinces, viz. Hunan, Hupeh, Honan, Chekiang, Fukien, Kiangsu, Kwangtung, Yunnan and Kweichow.

CHIANG TO CONFER WITH MERCHANTS

Canton, Sept. 14.
Following the peaceful settlement of the Nanking-Kwangsi imbroglio, it is reported that Marshal Chiang Kai-shek invited Messrs. Lo Sut-po, Chin Shu-fan, Choy Chong and others to a conference on Friday last for the purpose of considering the best ways and means for improving the trade and commerce of the Kwangtung Province.

COLONY HEALTH

One case of typhoid fever was reported to the local Health authorities during the week-end.

LI CHUNG JEN INTERVIEWED

Explains Terms Of Settlement

Nanning, Sept. 14.

The sudden settlement of the Kwangsi imbroglio is somewhat a miracle in the annals of Chinese politics, especially when the leading figures, Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, Generals Li Chung-jen and Pei Chung-hsi, whose unfriendliness towards each other had been known to be an incurable one, have pledged to set aside their grievances, for the time being at least, in favour of the work of national salvation.

This was as sensational as it was welcoming to the Chinese people and most of them are still in the dark as to the motive of the parties concerned. This, however, was clearly and carefully explained to a representative of the Da-Dao News Service by General Li Chung-jen in an interview at his headquarters.

The Da-Dao representative came straight to the point by asking on what terms were the differences peacefully settled. General Li said: "In the first place we demanded that the Central Government are to adopt our 'resist the Japanese to save the nation' proposal, that the nationals are at liberty to carry on the patriotic movement, that the freedom of speech is to be restored, and that all the northern forces now concentrated in Kwangtung are to be sent back to their original posts. All these terms the Central authorities are inclined to accept, and as far as we could ascertain, the public in Shanghai and Canton have more freedom than hitherto and the northern forces are gradually leaving Kwangtung. In view of these facts we are convinced that the Central Government have shown their sincerity in fulfilling the wishes of the whole nation."

NATIONAL DEFENCE

In reply to the question whether the Central Government were really in earnest making preparations for national defence, General Li stated that according to the three prominent envoys who came here some time ago, the Central authorities were sparing no efforts in tackling the problem. "At this moment when the situation in the northern part of the country is a tense one, the Central forces which were recently transported to the South will be re-transported to north of the Yellow River, ready for action," declared General Li. "In my opinion there is every cause for a war to break out this year and as to national defence it rests upon the deliberations of the Central authorities and the co-operation of the people."

With regard to the future of the Nineteenth Route Army, General Li confidently declared: "As it is a crack force to check the Japanese invasion, it is up to us to see to its well-being. Arrangements have just been completed to have the army stationed at the peninsula of Luichow (southern part of Kwangtung)."

The interview concluded with General Li's remark: "The Central Government have appointed me to be Commissioner of Pacification for Kwangsi and General Pei Chung-hsi, member of the standing committee of the War Council, and it is the earnest desire of the Central authorities that we should devote our attention and service of the tasks, which I may assure you, we are only too pleased to discharge."

REHABILITATION OF KWANGSI

Delegates At Nanning

Shanghai, Sept. 14.
The rehabilitation programme of Kwangsi is expected to commence this week. General Cheng Chien, chief of general staff, and Huang Shao-shung, Governor of Chekiang, arrived yesterday at Nanning.

They will firstly attempt to carry out the reorganisation of the Kwangsi Army; secondly, try to persuade General Pei Chung-hsi to proceed to Canton; thirdly, attempt to persuade the Kwangsi troops in Southern Kwangtung and particularly at Pakhoi, to withdraw immediately; fourthly, officiate at the oath-taking ceremony to General Li Tsung-jen.

PAKHOI INCIDENT TENSION

Gunboats Watching Developments

Canton, September 14.

The Pakhoi incident is causing the Central Government considerable anxiety. Japanese gunboats and Chinese gunboats are now anchored off Pakhoi, and as both sides are watching developments, the tension is increasing.

Another dangerous and disturbing factor is the activity of the troops under General Yung Shao-woon of the Nineteenth Route Army, as it is not known for certain whether the Nineteenth Route Army will obey the orders of the Central Government or not. But Marshal Chiang Kai-shek is confident of an early solution of the present difficulty.

Generals Ching Ching and Wang Shao-hung departed from Nanning on the 13th instant, and Generals Yu Han-mow, Heung Hon-ping, Tsui King-long, and the Civil Governor Wang Mo-chung and others assembled at the Tin Ho Aerodrome to see them off.

It is reported that Generals Ching and Wang will return on or about the 17th instant after administering the oath of office to Generals Li Tsung-jen and Pei Chung-hsi.

Generals Ching Ching and Wang Shao-hung will take advantage of their few days' stay in Nanning to confer with Generals Li Tsung-jen, Pei Chung-hsi, Li Chai-sum and Tsai Ting-kai and others regarding military and rehabilitation affairs of Kwangsi Province.

DEPARTURE FOR NANKING
As to the date of departure of Generals Pei Chung-hsi and Li Chai-sum for Nanking, it is understood that a date will be fixed after the meeting with Generals Ching Ching and Wang Shao-hung.

It is said that General Pei Chung-hsi will return to Canton with Generals Ching Ching and Wang Shao-hung on the 17th instant.

It is also reported that General Tang Shih-tseng will wait and return to Canton together with Generals Ching and Wang, although he decided to return by the aeroplane Northern Star some days ago.

Generals Ho Kin and Hung Sik-wei left for Hunan and Kiangsi by the Canton-Hankow Railway on the 13th instant after calling on Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, Civil Governor Wang Mo-chung and others to say good-bye.

DELEGATES WELCOMED
Canton, Sept. 14.

Owing to heavy rains and the swamping of the aerodrome at Nanning, Generals Ching Ching and Wang Shao-hung landed at Mow Ming about 120 li from Nanning.

They were welcomed by Generals Li Tsung-jen, Pei Chung-hsi and others, and heartily shook hands. The military band enlivening the proceedings.

After a short rest at the Headquarters of the Commander of the local volunteers, they all left together for Nanning in motor cars.

All the way they were watched by local volunteers, who occupied the watch towers and other points of vantage amidst the awe-inspiring mountains of the route.

In the evening they were feasted by Generals Li Tsung-jen and Pei Chung-hsi and other military and civil officials of the Kwangsi Government.

It is also reported that the Nineteenth Route Army will be incorporated in the Kwangsi Army as the 5th Route Army and placed under the command of General Li Tsung-jen with General Tsai Ting-kai as second in command.

SINO-JAPANESE RELATIONS

Conference Opens In Nanking

Shanghai, Sept. 14.
The long heralded formal conference for readjustment of Sino-Japanese relations will be opening this morning at Nanking between General Chang Chun and Mr. Kawagoe according to the Chinese press.

Although the Kiangsi and Pakhoi incidents are believed to have hurried the Japanese Ambassador's visit to Nanking, it is stated that the parity will not be limited to the two incidents but will include general relations of the two countries, including Sino-Japanese economic plans in North China.

CHINA SCHOLARS IN LONDON

Includes Girl From Hong Kong

London, Sept. 14.

Nineteen indemnity scholars including a girl, Miss Lai Po-kan from Hong Kong University, have arrived in London.

Mr. H. T. Slocck, director of the China Institute, on behalf of the Universities China Committee, met them at Plymouth and accompanied them aboard the steamer to London where a deputation of former indemnity students greeted them, bringing a letter of welcome in Chinese with maps of London tube and bus routes for each newcomer.

Several receptions are arranged including one by Mrs. Pridoux Brune, but the Universities China Committee's welcome has been delayed as most of the committee members have not yet returned to London.

The students will be comfortably lodged and old students will be assiduously looking after them till the beginning of the terms of the various universities.

Mr. Slocck, interviewed by Reuter, described the newcomers as a particularly attractive and promising lot. Excepting one student who will study aeronautical engineering, all will be allocated to the various English and Scottish Universities.

BREAK WITH RUSSIA?

Strong Denunciation By Hitler

ARCH ENEMY OF HUMANITY

Nuremberg, Sept. 14.
Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler is expected to make another important declaration to-morrow evening and there is much speculation as to its nature. One suggestion is that he will announce a breaking off of diplomatic relations with Russia on the ground that co-operation with a country whose principles are diametrically opposed to National Socialism cannot be advantageously continued.

Meanwhile, in Berlin, there have been official inspired demonstrations for the return of Germany's former colonies. They were held by the Reich Colonial League, under the aegis of the Ministry of Propaganda, in public squares throughout Berlin. Members of the former Colonial Army, in their picturesque uniforms, distributed leaflets containing Herr Hitler's demands for colonies, made at Nuremberg. They also contained an appeal to the public to join the Reich Colonial League and were addressed to all of German or kindred blood.

The demonstrations attracted large crowds, who were addressed by former colonial officers, who emphasised the vital importance of colonial possessions for the life of a great nation.

OLD ENEMY
Berlin, Sept. 13.
Another emphatic assertion of Germany's wish for peace was made by Herr Adolf Hitler in a speech before 100,000 Storm Troops and Black Guards at Nuremberg this morning.

"We have only one wish: that is to preserve peace as we have assured it in our own land. We have learned what war is and we would gladly stretch out our hands to the people around us. We will work with them; we have no hostility to them. But never will Germany go Bolshevik. That must be understood. We won't allow the result of our work, the industriousness of millions of men, to be destroyed by certain international Bolshevik Jews."

"What we have to improve we know very well ourselves. In other countries, the masses have been incited to protest meetings against Fascism and National Socialism, and there have been meetings in support of Bolshevism and to supply Bolsheviks with arms, money and men."

"I have not called any meetings but if I did there would be a meeting not of ten to thirty thousand undisciplined men, but millions and again millions would lift their hands against our old enemy, the arch enemy of humanity," he warned.

OPIUM SMOKING AND GAMBLING

Society To Assist In Suppression

Canton, Sept. 14.

Ever since the promulgation of the Government's notification prohibiting opium-smoking and gambling throughout the Kwangtung Province, all classes of society in the city are uniting and organising a society to be called the Kwangtung Opium-Smoking and Gambling Suppression Propaganda Association, to support the Government in the task of suppressing these two evils.

Two meetings of the promoters have already been held, and the third meeting is fixed to take place in the hall of the City Tang-pu to-day.

Besides considering propaganda methods, it is reported that the advisability of holding a lantern procession will also be discussed.

HOTELS COMPLAIN
Canton, Sept. 14.
It is rumoured that the hotels and restaurants guild has petitioned the Government complaining against the loss of business due to the suppression of gambling, and all games such as Ma Jongg, etc.

Although it is a fact that business of hotels and restaurants has suffered through the suppression of Ma Jongg, it has been ascertained from enquiries made that the said guild has not yet petitioned the Government for a relaxation of the laws affecting Ma Jongg.

PAKHOI STUDENT DEMONSTRATION
Pakhoi, Sept. 14.

The students in Pakhoi are greatly infuriated with the attempt of the Japanese gunboat, Saga, to land a party of marines and with the report that squadron of Japanese men-of-war are steaming south with Pakhoi as their destination. A number consisting of no less than two thousand students staged a lively demonstration against Japanese high-handedness. A deputation was sent to interview the garrison commander, Major-General Oong Chau-huan, requesting him to stand firm, and assuring him of their support.

INVASION TO BE RESISTED
Canton, Sept. 14.

A message from Pakhoi states that Major-General Oong Chau-huan, the garrison commander there, has issued a manifesto to the effect that the Japanese Government, instead of attempting to settle the Nakano incident through diplomatic channels, is trying to intensify the situation by the threat of sending along several warships. "I am determined," the manifesto goes on to say, "to defend this place, and should the Japanese dare to invade, my comrades and I will surely resist them with the spirit of our defence of Woosung and Shanghai."

DUTCHMEN MISSING FROM SHIP
Two Dutchmen were reported missing from their ship, the S.S. Tigbadka, early yesterday morning. Their names are W.C.F. Entus and H. Rendies. Entus is fourth officer of the boat.

A message from Canton stated that both men have been located.

POPE ADDRESSES SPANISH REFUGEES

SUBVERSIVE DOCTRINES DENOUNCED

Offences On Christian Life And Dignity

Castle Gandolfo, Sept. 14.
Sternly denouncing subversive doctrines, the Pope addressing 500 Spanish refugees in the course of a speech broadcast in Italy and other countries, referred to the Satanic preparations behind the Spanish civil war.

The flame of hatred and persecution relighted in Spain, which was directed against the Catholic Church, His Holiness declared "as the one real obstacle in the way of those subversive forces evident in Russia, China, Mexico and South America."

Continuing, the Pope said: "We must beware particularly such fratricidal carnage, so many offences on Christian life and dignity, such ruining of the most sacred and the most precious heritage of noble people."

"The happenings in Spain proclaim the extent to which the very foundations of all culture and civilisation is menaced."

The insidiousness wherewith these subversive forces were seeking common ground with Catholics was extremely dangerous and designed to deceive the world in favour of an unchanging programme of hate. He would pray for the persecutors of the Church in Spain to be reunited with the Church when peace returned.

PORTUGAL DRIFTING APART

Following Destinies Of Big Dictators

Paris, Sept. 14.
The suggestion that Portugal "is daily withdrawing further from her British alliance in order to follow the destinies of Europe's two big dictators," was put forward by Madame Tabouis, well-informed foreign affairs writer in L'Ouvre, semi-official daily.

She suggests the Portuguese Cabinet is deliberately working for the success of the insurgents in Spain.

She asserts the insurgents have a headquarters in a Lisbon hotel, with a direct telephone line to the Second Division at Seville; and a courier service with North Spain enabling the Catholic leader, Senor Gil Robles, to make daily contacts with the insurgent troops.

REFUGEE RIOTING AT GIBRALTAR

Gibraltar, Sept. 13.
Police used their truncheons and several persons were injured in a demonstration by a number of British subjects who have left their homes in Spain and who have been incensed by the British Government's decision to close the refugee camp. They have been quartered in the camp since their arrival here.

The demonstrators were going to Government House when police descended upon them and arrested the leaders.

A number of the demonstrators thereupon tried to rush the police station and a fight developed. Further trouble is feared.

IRISH BRIGADE FOR SPAIN

General O'Duffy's Announcement

Dublin, Sept. 13.
Some 2,000 Irishmen will soon be fighting in Spain against Communism, states General Owen O'Duffy, President of the United Ireland Party and chief of the Blue Shirt Organisation.

These men will form a distinctive part of the Spanish Foreign Legion and are travelling to Spain at a date yet to be disclosed, dressed in mufti and unarmed. It is thought that by this means they are avoiding breaking the non-intervention pact to which Britain has signified her intention of adhering.

Already two advance liaison officers have reached General Francisco Franco's headquarters at Caceres.

REJOICING AT BURGOS

Capture Of San Sebastian

Burgos, Sept. 14.
Great rejoicing was seen in the city when the news was received that the insurgents had captured San Sebastian.

The insurgent commander at Burgos addressing a cheering crowd, stated: "Victory is ours and it will not be long when we will have back what is rightfully ours."

Church bells were rung throughout the day while a procession paraded through the streets.

FLIGHT TO BILBAO

Hendaye, Sept. 13.
San Sebastian has been in the hands of the Nationalists since early Sunday, when at 3 a.m. advance patrols entered the town from all sides without encountering any resistance. The rear-guard of the Red Militia had followed the main body of troops to Bilbao, which town is now being fortified. Some detachments "managed" to flee to France at the last moment by cutting off from the others and taking to boats.

Despite the precautionary measures of the Basque Police, the Red Anarchists managed to set fire to some buildings. The Red Government of San Sebastian, before leaving the town, blew up the telephone exchange, the Radio Station and the Telegraph Office, as well as an underground street tunnel which is important for traffic.

The position in Bilbao, where food shortage is also making itself felt, has not improved with the arrival of 10,000 refugees from San Sebastian.

There are now 3,200 prisoners in the hands of the Reds as hostages, and the 650 transported from San Sebastian are to be added, and the Reds hope to be able to exert considerable pressure on General Mola with the lives of these hostages in their hands.

SPANISH MOROCCO FOR GERMANY

Suggestion Ridiculed In Berlin

Berlin, Sept. 13.
The German News Agency characterizes as a piece of impudence and pure invention the publication in the French paper "Republique" of the statement allegedly made in official circles of the Spanish republican Delegation.

According to this statement, the insurgent Government at Burgos has concluded an Agreement with Germany, whereby Germany will return for money put at the disposal of the Burgos Government, after the complete

FRENCH POLICY IN MOROCCO

Hampering General Franco

ALLEGATIONS BY CORRESPONDENT

(Hong Kong Daily Press Special)

Paris, Sept. 14.
It is the policy of the French Government, to create difficulties in the Spanish part of Morocco for General Franco, via French Morocco, according to the special correspondent of the "Echo de Paris" in Casablanca.

The correspondent continues to stress that, although the release by the French authorities of the well-known chieftain Abdel Krim from his island of banishment, Reunion, has not yet taken place, and reports to the contrary are premature, the authorities have actually allowed all other tribal chiefs who fought with Abdel Krim to leave their places of retirement assigned to them after their capitulation.

It is evident, the correspondent says, that the aim of these actions was to cause trouble for General Franco, since the released tribal chiefs immediately started their propagandist activities against the Spanish.

It is stressed furthermore that the frontier restrictions which were made very much more severe, have already had the effect of intensifying the antagonism of the Moroccans against Spain.

LITTLE ENTENTE CONFERENCE

Bratislava, Sept. 13.
The formal conference of the Permanent Advisory Council of the Little Entente, comprising the three respective Foreign Ministers, was opened here on Sunday.

Of greater significance than the whole conference was probably the preliminary conversation held on Saturday between President Dr. Benes and the three Foreign Ministers, concerning which the semi-official press states that full agreement was being reached in all matters of central European politics. It was also unanimously decided that in addition to the three Foreign Ministers, in future the three respective heads of the States concerned, Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia, should meet at regular intervals, in order to ensure that the policy of the Little Entente should not be affected by any change of Foreign Minister.

The first of these meetings will occur on October 27, when King Carol will visit Dr. Benes in Prague. To celebrate this occasion, new stamps, exactly identical, except for the currency, will be issued in all three countries.

Settlement Efforts By Premier

ULTIMATUM TO EMPLOYERS

(Hong Kong Daily Press Special)

Paris, Sept. 14.
Premier Blum's efforts to bring about a peaceful solution of the conflict in the textile industry in Lille have hitherto been unsuccessful, although the Premier spent the whole Sunday on the spot negotiating with the parties concerned. An ultimatum has now been presented by the Premier to the employers which requires the latter to accept the following conditions:

- 1: they must admit in principle increased wages;
- 2: they must sign a collective agreement with the wage earners;
- 3: work must be resumed 24 hours after the settlement has been reached.

Whereas the workers' delegates declared themselves ready to accept beforehand the Government's decision, the employers decided not to reply to the Premier's proposals till Monday afternoon. In the meanwhile they strongly protest against the illegal occupation of the factories by the workers.

AMAZING STORY AT OLD BAILEY

Hired By Foreign Power To Kill The King

McMAHON'S STATEMENT DISCREDITED

TWELVE MONTHS' HARD LABOUR

London, September 14.
The trial opened to-day at the Old Bailey, London, on George Andrew McMahon who was arrested on July 16 after a revolver alleged to have been loaded in four chambers fell near the King's horse on Constitution Hill. He has since been remanded in custody.

The three charges upon which McMahon was committed for trial, are, firstly, unlawfully possessing a firearm and ammunition with intent to endanger life; secondly, presenting near the person of the King a pistol with intent to break the peace; thirdly, unlawfully and wilfully producing near the person of the King the said pistol with intent to alarm His Majesty. The prisoner pleaded not guilty.

The Attorney General, Sir Donald Somervell, K.C., is leading for prosecution and Mr. St. John Hutchinson, K.C., for the defence.

Verdicts of not guilty on first two counts of the indictment were returned at the direction of the Judge. The trial on the third count is proceeding.

British Wireless.

LADY TESTIFIES
London, Sept. 14.
Events in Hyde Park on July 16 were reconstructed in the course of evidence at the Old Bailey which was crowded at the opening of the McMahon trial.

Mrs. Lily Yeoman of Leytonstone, testified that she was near the edge of the roadway when she heard McMahon conversing with a police officer, after which the procession appeared.

"I saw the King had stopped saluting and was staring in McMahon's direction," she said. "When I looked back again McMahon had an arm raised and an object left his hand and hit the horse."

Cross-examined, Mrs. Yeoman agreed that if McMahon wished he could easily have fired. Witness said that McMahon bent down and threw the revolver underhand.

KNOCKED HIS HAND
Mr. Anthony Dick, Special Constable, described how he saw the prisoner's hand in the air and just managed to knock his arm. He then got hold of him and he did not know whether the object had left his hand when he knocked it.

Police Constable Mayne gave a dramatic account of the events from the time the procession appeared in sight until the King reached the material.

"I happened to glance to the left and saw the prisoner rushing into the roadway, apparently making towards the King," said witness. "I rushed forward and grabbed him with both arms and saw a shining object fall under the forelegs of the King's horse."

Robert Churchill, gun expert, identified the revolver, and declared that it was an easy matter to discharge five shots in two seconds. There was no evidence that it had ever been fired at all.

SECRET SERVICE

London, Sept. 14.
Secret service men are expected to be called to testify in the McMahon case which opened at the Old Bailey to-day on a threefold charge of unlawful possession of a firearm with intent to endanger life, presenting a pistol near the King, with intent to break the peace, unlawfully producing said pistol with intent to alarm His Majesty.

The Attorney General in opening the case argued that the charges were well-founded on previous evidence. He asserted that as regards the third charge it was unnecessary to inquire what was in the prisoner's mind or whether in fact the King was alarmed. The judge withheld decision thereon until he had heard the evidence.

PEACE OF BRITAIN AND EMPIRE

Air Minister's Speech

London, Sept. 14.
Lord Swinton, Air Minister, in a speech in Cumberland said that what gave Britain preeminence among the nations to-day was that her people had stood together in difficult times and had had no resort to dictatorship of the right or of the left.

Referring to defence policy, he said they would go forward without panic, but with the firm determination to do whatever was necessary to ensure the peace of Britain and of the Empire. To make sure of that it was necessary to have a force of peace in the world. Britain and the Empire—the greatest bulwark of peace—should be strong enough to make it not worth while for anyone in a moment of wickedness or madness to take the risk of war.

HAS NEW WORLD HEAVYWEIGHTER BEEN FOUND?

AMERICA HAILS "WHITE HOPE" CAREER OF PHIL BRUBAKER FROM PULPIT TO PUNCHES

Phil Brubaker was born to fight to beat the devil.

In boyhood and early youth, the 21-year-old heavyweight, who looms as a leading white hope after his knockout of Fred Lenhart and victory over King Levinsky, figured his fight was along theological lines. He planned to study for the ministry.

A few months ago, he turned his thoughts seriously to boxing—and from being just "one of the Hicks from the sticks" he has risen to where San Francisco ring fans see a world champion in the dominion-turned-boxer.

With four world champions from California, all developed in San Francisco rings, fans hereabouts know something about spotting a lad with what it takes.

Steadily and coolly, Brubaker has come along in his various starts. He wasn't kept on a "push-over" diet. Fred Lenhart, Tacoma veteran who rates with Charley Retsch, was brought in to see what Brubaker could do against cagey competition. Four punches sent Lenhart out by the count for the first time in his career, just 68 seconds after the opening bell.

His latest opponent was King Levinsky, certainly not a dish to set before a peegreen—unless the peegreen has what it takes. His 10-round decision over the Kingfish, with Levinsky on the floor twice, and both fighting all the way, has moved Brubaker to the top flight, and definitely to be considered an opponent for Braddock, though he's now in the game that his name doesn't appear in the record book.

Fighting is just a means toward an end with Brubaker—to make money, win a title, then devote himself to Y. M. C. A. work, or assist in religious work while being a business man.

Born on a Dinuba, Calif., ranch, Phil's ambition was to follow two older brothers as football stars at Dinuba high school. An injury blocked this, so, for an outlet, the lad turned to track and basketball. He did a little amateur boxing, but his basketball prowess, plus his interest in theology, won him a tuition scholarship in College of the Pacific at Stockton.

No matter how much he may hunger for knowledge, yet greater was his hunger for fighting.

Under the guidance of Manager Billy Hunnefeld, Brubaker battled in the smaller rings, developing a kayo punch and ability to handle himself. Broken hands bothered him, but surgical skill seems to have cleared up this one weak point in his equipment. The class of boys he met was getting better; it required more training. So study for the ministry was suspended, while the fight game was taken more seriously. He became a "star."

"COBRA-LIKE"

"He possesses freedom of movement as a result, with amazing speed of arms and legs, and ability to hit out, cobra-like," says an American writer in the "Manila Bulletin."

"Both fists are effective weapons, his short right being lethal. And the lad has gotten off the canvas after taking a hard wallop, to fight his way to a triumph."

His coolness is remarkable in an inexperienced fighter. His defense will carry him a long way, but he's a coming-in brawler, rather than a dance-away. The Brubaker brain is completely equipped with all the appurtenances for swift, lucid thinking, and his heart is a fighter's type, too.

RING-TEXT

Brubaker's ring code doesn't include turning the other cheek when someone smites him. His coordination indicates his left and

PROBLEM OF GROUND SOLVED

St. Andrew's To Share With C.B.A.

NEW CLUBHOUSE PROPOSED

According to a new arrangement made recently, the Central British Association and St. Andrew's Club will share the use of the C.B.A. ground at King's Park. It is stated that a new Clubhouse is planned.

It is understood that the C.B.A. will have the use of the ground, which in the past has been shared by the Central British School, on Monday, Wednesday and Friday with St. Andrew's and C.B.A. having priority of alternate Saturdays.

This will mean that St. Andrew's have solved their ground problem which so acute last season. They were only able to fulfill four games in the Mamak Hockey League last year, and to withdraw from the tournament for the first time in the Club's history.

Last season, the Central British Association annexed the "B" Division of the Mamak Hockey Championship.

The ground at King's Park this year will therefore not only be the venue of home games of the men's hockey teams of St. Andrew's and the C.B.A., but also the home ground for the women's section, both of which will compete in the Caer Clark Cup Competition.

INTERPORT BOWLS

Shanghai, Sept. 14.
In the third and last game of the Interport series, Hong Kong gained a victory over Shanghai by 20 shots to 13.

The Hong Kong team comprised P. E. Knight, F. V. V. Ribeiro, A. Hyde-Lay and H. A. Alves (skip).—Reuter.

SWIMMING HEATS

In connection with the annual swimming Championships of the Colony which start to-day, heats for the 200 yards free style open relay were held at the V.R.C. bath yesterday evening.

The first heat was won by P. E. Knight, F. V. V. Ribeiro, A. A. da Rosa, with the South China A.A. (Wong Chi Hong, Kwok Hon Ming, Yip Hon Chun and Norman Lee) second.

In the second heat, the University team (H. L. Ozorio, E. L. Gosano, Lau Fo-hel and Chung Wing Ngok) came first. The Army (Lt. A. J. Lewis, Lt. R. A. Barron, Cpl. R. McCarthy and R/m. Hamilton) were second.

Fight hands aren't keeping their doings secret from each other.

But in planning his future, he looks to a conclusion of his ring wars according to Timothy (good fighting name, too) 4:7, which says: "I have fought the good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith."

Colony Meet Filipinos
On Thursday

(BY "BLEACHER")

Although two post-season baseball games were scheduled to be played this week, local fans will be disappointed to learn that there will only be one match between Hong Kong and the Filipino visitors.

Owing to the fact that the players of Pul Ching Academy, Canton, must remain in school during mid-week it is impossible for them to come to Hong Kong to play.

However, a strong team selected from among the best players of local clubs, will meet the Calamba Sugar Estate team on Thursday at 5.15 p.m.

The Colony side, which will be captained by Hearther, will be selected from the following players:—Jones (Mindanao), Mikiuni (Japanese), Bowen (Volunteers), Yasuda (Japanese), Allen (Americans), Moore (Mindanao), Arculli (Eastern), Bacea (Mindanao), Horton (Mindanao), Takeda (Japanese), Barros (Americans), Stapan (Mindanao), White (Mindanao), Mulr (Canadians), Smedley (Americans), and David Leonard (Volunteers).

The last of Europe's "Grand Prix" motor races proved yet another victory for Germany and another leaf in the laurels of the extraordinary successful young race driver Rosemeyer, who drives an Auto Union. On the 503 kilometres long course of Monza he drove his car in an exciting race in 3 hrs. 43 mins and 25 secs for the whole stretch.

The well-known Italian driver Nuvolari passed the winning post on an Alfa Romeo 2 mins 5.6 secs later, while the third place was taken by another German driver, young Ernst von Delfus.—Transocean News Service.

WORLD SERIES

New York, Sept. 13.

It was announced to-day that the World Series games for the title of the baseball root for 1936 will start at 1.30 p.m. on September 30 on the ground of which ever team wins the National League pennant.

The second, sixth and seventh games will also be played on that ground and the third, fourth and fifth on the Yankee Stadium, the Yankees having already won the American League championship.

The present National League standings, before to-day's games were completed, gave New York the lead with .601, and St. Louis was a weakening second with .576. Chicago had .564 and very little chance of catching up the leaders. The Giants are not favorites.

If the Giants win the pennant, it will bring two New York teams to the World Series and the seven games will be played on consecutive days, otherwise there will be a day's interval between each change of venue.

The broadcasting rights have again been purchased by the Ford Motor Company for $100,000.—Reuter.

H.K. REFEREES MEET

Chairman Appeals
For Co-operation

COMING SEASON DISCUSSED

Full co-operation and the whole-hearted support of members to the association were stressed by Mr. T. G. Stokes, chairman of the Hong Kong Referees' Association in presiding at a meeting of this body held yesterday in the room of the Hong Kong Football Association, when he welcomed new members.

Mr. Stokes expressed the opinion that if this co-operation was forthcoming this season, it would see the Referees' Association become one of the finest organizations of its description in the whole of the Far East. This was the object that they had to strive for.

Supporting Mr. Stokes in the chair, was Mr. D. Kossick (Hon. Secretary) and there was a good attendance present.

It was intimated by the chairman that most of the clubs in the league had written stating their willingness to co-operate with the Referees' Association regarding the question of allowing members of this body in without charge, to witness matches, whether in an official capacity or not. All that was required was an affiliation card to be shown by the referees in question at the gate.

Mr. Stokes said that the Football Association was attempting to tighten up matters between the two associations with regard to the early return of official result cards from referees. In future no payment would be made to those officiating at matches until the cards were returned, and specially printed forms had been made for this purpose.

Captains of teams will have to fill in specially prepared forms and these must be handed to the referees before the commencement of games, such as was the practice last season. Referees had to endeavour to ascertain goal scorers, but this point was not imperative.

The goal scorers were not required for any official purpose, but since a great number of referees in the past season had gone out of their way to affix the goal scorers in a match, a specially printed form was available for this purpose.

Objections were raised on this point and it was pointed out that, it would be difficult for an English referee to find out the names of scorers in a game between two Chinese eleven.

It was revealed by the Hon. Secretary that there were 43 members of the Referees' Association last year, which represented 83 per cent. of all affiliated referees. The Welsh Association had now joined the Referees' Association in London, so that there was a slight change in the official badge, a stock of which had been received in Hong Kong.

Twenty-five affiliation cards from the Referees' Association at home had been received which entitled the possessor to facilities in any part of the globe in which the association was affiliated to the home association. A further supply would be obtained later.

The question of new quarters for the Referees' Association was brought up by a member who stated that 26 candidates had been successful in passing the Army Referee Board. If this amount joined the local association, the present space would be inadequate. It was suggested that a letter be written to Capt. Kimm, of the Army Educational Board, for permission to use the Army School Room, situated in Queen's Road, where ample accommodation was available.

Mr. Stokes said that the question would have to be gone into thoroughly before a decision was arrived at one way or the other. If the necessity arose for larger accommodation, he personally thought that the Sports Club could be approached for another room.

Club secretaries were invited to communicate with Mr. Kossick regarding friendly fixtures arranged for the week-end or week days. It was stated that the Referees' Association would be only pleased to arrange for a member to officiate at these "friendlies" without charge.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the Hon. Secretary for the work he had put in during the off season.

The meeting closed after a discussion of certain rules and amendments which had been circulated by the Hong Kong Football Association for the coming season.

NAVY AND AIR PERIL

Flag Officer's Experience In The War

Small Ships Mean Small Targets

In considering the matter of naval strategy and tactics it is necessary to bear in mind the purpose for which navies exist. The sole purpose of fleets is to preserve one's own communications and to destroy, or render inadequate, those of the enemy. The sea is the only medium that can convey stores and troops in sufficient quantities to be of use between countries separated from each other by water.

It takes the place of railways and motor transport on land, and, although the air is extremely valuable in other ways, it can never supplant ships as carriers of large quantities of goods and people across the oceans of the world. The great weight of fuel that must be carried in the thin medium of the air reduces the load of goods and people to such an extent that the radius of action is brought down to an impractical limit.

There is an important point which influences the naval strategy of, and types of, men-of-war required by different countries. (1) Some nations are self-supporting with regard to food and most raw materials. (2) Other countries can have their extra wants supplied by land services without having to rely on sea transport. (3) A few, like ourselves, have to rely altogether on ships for their existence.

Take the case of the first type of country. In the event of war breaking out, they can tell their merchant ships to remain in neutral harbours until an escort comes to bring them home. This escort need not be formed of a large number of men-of-war, but it does require that the escorting warships shall be of the strongest type of cruiser with the longest range gun allowed for them, so as to prevent raiders coming within range of the convey of ships that are being protected.

The second class can exist without men-of-war, if they have no overseas possessions.

SUFFICIENT LIGHT CRUISERS VITAL

For the last class of country, to which we belong, it is vital to have sufficient light cruisers to protect their merchant vessels from raiders in the open seas, and aircraft destroyers and other small craft to shield them from submarine attack when reaching focal points on their routes and when nearing or leaving their ports of call.

So the strategy of each class must be formed for their different requirements.

We will next consider the question of the protection of men-of-war from air attack, which is very much before the public at the present time. Some people exaggerate the danger and their opponents minimize it. It is between the opinions of these extremists that the truth lies.

If aircraft can be prevented from attacking from a low height, the chances of hitting are very much reduced, as anyone who has seen objects dropped from an aircraft over the earth can realize the difficulty of making direct hits. As there is no way of finding out what cross currents there are below the bombing plane this creates an insuperable difficulty, which has accounted for the very few bombs that reached their targets in the last war.

ANTI-AIRCRAFT MEASURES

Since that time, however, new types of anti-aircraft gun and other weapons (which, naturally, have to be kept secret) have come into being, which will oblige aircraft to fly much higher than of old over ships and other objectives which they mean to attack; and this, combined with the varying horizontal currents, will reduce the number of hits registered against ships by bombs to a small and perhaps negligible quantity. Added to which the armoured decks of the larger type of ships that are struck will make the bombs explode before they penetrate, and the damage done will consequently be slight.

The difficulties of successful bombing were brought home to me when my temporary flagship in the Adriatic, a monitor, was bombed for over half an hour by seaplanes flying at a height of less than 1,000ft., and which succeeded

CORONATION EMBLEMS

KING APPROVES
CROWN IN DECORATIONS

The King has approved a recommendation of the Home Secretary, Sir John Simon, that the Crown alone or with other emblems, and the Royal Cypher, may be used in Coronation decorations. Emblems with which the Crown may be used are:

The united red and white roses.
The thistle.
The shamrock.
The harp.
The red Dragon on a green mount, and
The united rose, thistle and shamrock.

The only stipulation is that the Crown and Royal Cypher must not be associated with advertising.

by bombs or torpedoes, yet damage to a ship will reduce her speed considerably, and, if she is accompanied by others, will probably necessitate the reduction of speed of the whole squadron. The late war showed us that after the submarine, the air and the torpedo had come into their own. One day in the Adriatic two Austrian super-Dreadnoughts, with several destroyers to protect them, rashly went to sea.

This daring deed was reported by wireless to Italy, and Capt. Rizzo and Mid. Aonzo with two motor boats carrying torpedoes put to sea, attacked from ahead at full speed, and twice torpedoed the leading battleship, Szent Istvan, which shortly afterwards sank.

Since the coming of the aeroplane, the submarine, and the torpedo, the battleship, instead of becoming the most-feared vessel on the sea, has become the one that needs the most protection, and blockade by vessels of this type is now impossible.

SMALL SHIPS MEAN SMALL TARGETS.

These instances show that it would be a great advance in naval strategy if the size of the largest ships and guns were greatly reduced all over the world. Small war vessels would be more numerous and more difficult targets for bombs and torpedoes, and the statistics of the last war showed that the greatest damage to our commerce was done by small cruisers, merchant ship raiders, and submarines; whereas the large ships in our fleet were reduced by 25 per cent., torpedo boat destroyers by 100 per cent., and other small craft in even greater numbers.

During the whole war not a single merchant ship escorted by flying boats, seaplanes, or aeroplanes was sunk. The submarine dreads aircraft, because only aircraft can see the V-shaped track caused by the periscope directly it appears on the surface, and the aeroplane or seaplane can reach the submarine a few seconds later and drop its depth bombs beside her. ## COLONY LAWN BOWLERS IN SHANGHAI

Defeat Recreation Club
After Hard Fight

LOSE TO LUSITANO

The Hong Kong Interport Lawn Bowls team won their first match on September 7 against the Shanghai Recreation Club, on the latter's green, by twenty-four shots to twenty-one, after a very hard fight. The green was very fast but in splendid condition, drawing well on either hand but the gusty wind made bowling a bit tricky. A novel innovation was the new score board, modelled on the style of the cricket board, and the Recs seem to have at last got a board that is really successful, easily seen from all parts and easily understood. There was a large crowd present in the latter stages of the game, and whilst the bowling was not of a very high order, they witnessed a keen struggle. The Recs entertained the visitors at the conclusion of the match in their club house.

Making due allowances for the fact that the Colony team have not quite settled down yet and were playing on a green that was much faster than anything they are used to in Hong Kong, Shanghai should win the interport series.

For their match against the Recs the Colony were represented by A. Hyde-Lay (skip), H. A. Alves (No. 3), J. F. McGowan (No. 2), A. E. Coates (lead). The Recs four were L. Bell (skip), R. J. S. Brandt (No. 3), A. J. Willis (No. 2), J. R. Main (lead). Hong Kong won the toss and Coates laid a short end but Jim Main beat him in the draw. The end went to the visitors with a two, Alves and Hyde-Lay's woods counting. The Recs replied with a three at the next and took the third with a single but their opponents came back with a good four at the next end. Bell falling to save.

The fifth end also went to the Colony with a single, Alves knocking in Coates' wood for the shot, score 7-4 in their favour. They also took the 6th, 7th and 8th ends with two two's and a single. At this stage Hong Kong had the upper hand, and the Recs, four with the exception of Jim Main were putting up a very poor show.

END BURNT

At the 9th the Recs were lying three, when Alves came up with a fast one and burnt the end. On the replay McGowan drew the shot with his second, Brandt carried Jack for shot, Alves displaced him. Hyde-Lay got the shot with a wick off, Bell came up with weight on and gave the Recs a single. The 10th was a very poor end; nearly all the woods were short but the Recs had the best of a bad lot to get a useful four, Hyde-Lay failing to save under very difficult conditions with so many short woods in front, the score standing at 12-9 in favour of the visitors.

The 11th went to Hong Kong, Brandt knocking the Jack on to their wood for a single. The teams then stopped for the tea interval. On resumption Hong Kong got a two at the 12th, Bell giving them one. The Recs then took the next two ends with a single and a two and the 15th went to Hong Kong with a two, giving them a lead of 17-12.

At the 16th Hyde-Lay in trying to save the end with several shots against him was unlucky enough to knock the Jack on to the Recs woods and the latter got a useful five, which brought the score all square at seventeen. Things now began to look interesting and the Recs chances hopeful but it was their last flutter. They failed badly in the next three ends, which Hong Kong took with a two, a single and a four, their skip and Alves being mainly responsible. The last end went to the Recs with a single and with only one shot against them Hong Kong with the match in hand refused to take any risk.

DISAPPOINTING FORM

It had been a keen struggle, if a disappointing one in many ways. Hong Kong hardly lived up to the form that was expected of them, and the Recs, with the exception of J. R. Main and A. J. Willis, gave a very mediocre display. Main surprised everyone by his form, he had Coates beaten at practically every end, and he was easily the best of the Recs four. Bell as skip failed badly; it was evidently his day off and he could hardly do anything right. For the winners, Hyde-Lay as skip for the most part was good and he will no doubt do even better in his next games. Alves started a bit nervously but settled down in the latter stages and bowled well. McGowan in spite of getting a few good shots, did not show interport form and Coates was not the lead that Shanghai knew in previous interports, but it is understood that he has not been in the best of health and he may improve.

MEDICAL EVIDENCE

STABBING INQUEST HEARING RESUMES

Wounds Self-Inflicted?

Medical evidence occupied the greater part of the hearing which was resumed before the Coroner, Mr. W. Schofield, and a jury, of the inquest into the death of Ng Yuk Tong, son of a well-known local Chinese family, who was found dead in the room of a woman, Cheung Yee Lau, at No. 38 Kennedy Road on July 19. Public interest in the case has not abated and once again a large number of spectators filled the Courtroom.

Mr. Leo D'Almada, Jun., instructed by Mr. W. A. Mackintosh, appeared on behalf of the deceased's family while Mr. M. K. Lo watched the proceedings on behalf of Cheung Yee Lau. Mr. T. Murphy, A.D.C.I., assisted by Sub-inspector J. O'Donovan, were present for the Police.

The jury consisted of Messrs. F. A. Mackintosh (foreman), D. D. A. Alonco and J. V. Gomes.

Dr. G. H. Thomas, of the Government Civil Hospital, testified that deceased had a long almost vertical wound two inches above the navel. The abdominal muscles were perforated and the anterior surfaces of the stomach and liver were cut. The lining of the membrane of the throat and gullet were congested. The stomach was dark and there was no stain of colouration around the mouth. The other organs were pale but otherwise normal.

CAUSE OF DEATH

Dr. Thomas stated that the cause of death was haemorrhage from wounds in the stomach and liver in addition to another more serious injury, and also from corrosive fluid found in the stomach.

The body was identified in his presence as that of Ng Yuk Tong by Wong Wai, an amah, and Ng Choi, cousin of the deceased.

Replying to questions by the Coroner, the witness stated he could not tell which wound was inflicted first.

Asked if the wounds were self-inflicted the witness replied that from their appearance he inferred that they were.

The direction of the abdominal wound was upwards.

SELF-INFLECTED WOUNDS

Dr. Thomas added that from his own knowledge of self-inflicted wounds the upward thrust was more prominent among the Chinese people. He made this reply when asked if the upward cut was less consistent with suicide.

Dr. Thomas could not say if the the poison (spirits of salt) in the deceased's system was taken accidentally or not. More than one ounce would be sufficient. The drink gave a burning sensation and was sour. It was lemon coloured and depended on the strength of the drink.

WOMAN'S INJURIES

Witness described the injuries sustained by the woman, Cheung Yee Lau. He stated there was a gaping wound on the left side of her back. There was a triangular flap of skin exposing the muscle at the back of the left arm above the elbow. The wounds healed and the patient was discharged from hospital on July 23.

Dr. Thomas stated that the wounds could have been caused by the knife exhibited in Court.

Mr. D'Almada: The wounds were not self-inflicted?

Witness: Not likely.
Replying further, the witness said that he could not tell what position she was in when she received the wounds.

BLOOD IN KNIFE

Dr. R. S. Begbie, Assistant Government Bacteriologist, deposed that he examined the knife the blade of which was covered with blood. Witness could not state whether it was human blood as it was smeared.

Mr. V. C. Branson, Government Analyst, gave evidence that he examined the contents of the deceased's stomach and found it corroded by hydrochloride.

Dr. Sung Seung Hei, a friend of the deceased, stated that the last time he saw the deceased was two days before his death. The deceased was swimming at the Repulse Bay Lido.

At this stage the hearing was adjourned to Thursday at 2.30 p.m.

ENGLAND-RAND AIR RACE

them nearer the finishing line. In the air the course of the competing aeroplanes is exceptionally untrammelled. They must be seen at Belgrade—a stipulation made to prevent over-daring racers from taking the shortest way between England and Italy over the greatest length of the Mediterranean. They must call in at Cairo, and perhaps at Salisbury. Otherwise, each pilot may refuel where he pleases. He may fly non-stop over long stages, with the powerplant throttled to economical cruising speed, or fly shorter stages at full throttle and refuel more frequently.

The race coincides with the great Empire Exhibition at Johannesburg and is planned to attract to the city examples of Britain's fastest and most modern transport planes.

GERMAN AIR FORCE

Expansion Plans Outlined

The formal introduction of a two-year military service system in Germany has naturally aroused some speculation about its possible effects on the junior services, as it applies in the new law to service in the Navy and air arm as well as in the Army.

It naturally affects the Army primarily, as the other services, owing to their technical requirements, are formed largely of long-service men and do not depend on the conscript contingents. The Navy is barely touched by the measure.

The air arm, although it was built on a volunteer basis, has been drawing on the conscript contingent to a certain extent. The increase of the term of conscript service is not expected to make much difference numerically, but it is bound to improve the quality of the force, which includes the anti-aircraft artillery, and make for a big gain in efficiency.

CONSCRIPT LAW CHANGE

Apart from the change in the conscript law, there is good reason to expect a further expansion of the air arm in October. In April and October changes in service organizations are wont to come formally into force on a larger scale than at other times, although units are always being formed as organizations proceed. It is said that a batch of some 200 machines will be put into commission in October for the creation of new formations and the opening of new stations. The strength of the German air arm has been wrapped in mystery from its early days when its own calculations of "first line" machines at the time, for instance, of Sir John Simon's Berlin visit, would seem to have been based on a somewhat thin standard. It may be hazardous that the coming increase will bring the strength well over the level of 1,000 first-line machines calculated on the strictest basis of reserve depth.

RE-EQUIPMENT

It is also widely understood that a start is likely to be made fairly soon with the re-equipment of

BRITISH AMBASSADOR TO CHINA

"SHUN PAO" COMMENT

Commenting on the negotiations in Tokyo between the new British ambassador to China, Sir Hugh Knatchbull-Hugesson, and officials of the Japanese government, the "Shun Pao" writes:
"After visiting Washington and Toronto, the British ambassador to China has arrived in Tokyo. Before his departure from London, he called on Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, who spent nine months investigating economic and financial conditions in this country. He also visited the Japanese ambassador in London.

The present visit of the ambassador to Tokyo to exchange views with Japanese officials regarding Anglo-Japanese and Sino-Japanese relations is of the utmost importance for China.

"It is most extraordinary for a diplomat to discuss problems pertaining to the country to which he is accredited before he has presented his credentials and assumed office. In the present case, however, it is understandable. Both Britain and Japan are eager to arrive at common aims.

"For China, this is a time at which Japan and Britain should come to an understanding. With the solution of the southwest problem, and the unification of China and the opening of Sino-Japanese negotiations, it is obvious that economic conflicts will be aggravated. The time is therefore ripe to find a solution of the situation.

"Present-day developments in the international situation demand a new adjustment of Anglo-Japanese relations. Since Spain is likely to go Fascist, Britain is obliged to adopt a more conciliatory attitude towards Japan. Japan meanwhile has great worries over markets, since Manchuria has not turned out to be a promised land in this respect and she has not yet completed her domination of China. Because of this, Japan is willing to reconsider her relations with Britain.

"There are many reports which indicate the likelihood of an Anglo-Japanese rapprochement. It is even reported that Sir Samuel Hoare favours extension of British recognition to Manchukuo with recognition of Japan's special interests in China. The Japanese, on their part, are prepared to reaffirm respect for China's territorial integrity, the open door policy, coupled with due recognition of Britain's interests in China. Although reports along these lines have been denied, their significance cannot be denied or ignored."

STEAM LAUNCH DISASTER

Heavy Death Roll Feared

Shanghai, Sept. 14.

The Chinese press reports from Foochow that 50 passengers are believed to have been drowned when a steam launch sank during a storm yesterday near Huangchi on the Fukien coast.

Rumours that the two-year service decision will be followed by the announcement at the party rally of a system of pre-military training for German Youth along the lines of the Italian Balilla are regarded with some reserve in political quarters. If a certain degree of pre-military training without arms is meant, this would once again be little more than a confirmation of existing practice in the Hitler Youth. Although nothing is ever certain in National-Socialist Germany, it is thought that the Army, which has strong views on pre-military training in any case, would hardly be disposed to agree to the arming of German Youth to the extent implied.
